

ABSTRACT

A method for processing a first optical face and a second optical face of a lens, where a lens blank is positioned and gripped by a gripping device relying on 5 reference datum indications rendering it possible to obtain topographic orientation for processing both faces of the lens, and wherein not more than one reference datum indication extends on a face of the lens.